DUBLIN, March 26.—Freeman's Journal [illegible] that the [illegible] United States [illegible] has resulted in the [illegible] inducing [illegible] the extradition of the person known as "Number One." The Journal declares that "Number One," whose name is Tynan, was in Dublin until the first day that James Carey was examined at the hearing of the conspirators. He then escaped to [illegible] Bremen by way of Hull. From Bremen he proceeded to Havre and then to New York. He was a member in the London volunteer corps.

The Trial Begins.

BELFAST, March 26.—The trial of six members of the Armagh assassination society was begun here to-day. Judge Lawson presided. Murphy, in opening the case for the crown, dwelt strongly upon the circumstance that when Burns arrived in Ireland in the end of 1880 to organize the assassination society he displayed the American flag from his lodging at Graig Maglin. Evidence of an informer will be introduced by the prosecution for the purpose of showing the murders were planned by the society, and documents supporting this charge will be produced.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 26.—A report, which has gained currency, of the death of Perelleff, formerly director of the postoffice, who attempted to commit suicide a second time on Monday last, is not true.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

BADLY BEATEN BY CHINAMEN.

VICTORIA, March 26.—The Chinese employed on one of the sections of the railway near New Westminster made a savage assault on their foreman to-day, beating him about the head and body with their shovels and picks, until he became insensible. He was brought to the hospital. No hopes are entertained of his recovery. The gang have been placed nominally under arrest, but it is doubtful if they can be held. Much alarm has been felt for some time at the lawless attitude of the Chinese. When they congregate in large numbers they become saucy and threatening, and in case of an accident to one of their number they attack the [illegible] man. The cause of this outbreak is as yet unknown.

PREPARING FOR THE SPRING [illegible]

At the mouth of the Skeena the [illegible] are approaching completion. Great activity prevails, not only at the new canneries but at [illegible] once. Many of them are enlarging and all are hard at work, making preparations for the spring catch of salmon. On the Nass River [illegible] and elsewhere all is life and animation. Full advantage is being taken of the delightful weather of the last few weeks, and work is correspondingly well advanced.

WASHINGTON.

Will Attend the Postmaster General's Funeral.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Among those who will leave Washington to-night to attend the funeral ceremonies of the late postmaster general are Secretary Teller, Lincoln and Chandler and a delegation from the postoffice department consisting of Hon. Frank Hatton, acting postmaster general, Judge Freeman, assistant attorney general, John Jamieson, assistant superintendent of the railroad mail service, [illegible] Colonel Parker, chief inspector, and Colonel Thompson, superintendent of the railway mail service, now traveling in the west, have been notified and are expected to join the delegation to Kenosha. It is probable that Senator Hill, of Colorado, acting chairman of the senate committee on postoffices and post roads, and Hon. Henry A. Bingham, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the postoffice committee, will accompany the delegation from Washington.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

THE DALLES, March 26.—It began raining at this point yesterday at 3 P. M. and has rained constantly up to this evening. Two and a half inches of snow has fallen, making a total precipitation of 1.85 inches. Barometer 29.69 and falling. Thermometer 32. It is snowing hard now. The ground has absorbed the entire moisture. This will insure large crops of grain east of the mountains.

INTERNATIONAL TOUCHINESS.

A Racy Piece on America from a London Journal.

Saturday Review.

We are always stirring up the American eagle with poles not so short but that they reach across the Atlantic. We venture, for example, to grin at the American patriotic poet. Singing of a battle he describes warriors who "bleached up that day." This is as comic as the English patriotic poet with his famous line, "Round those devoted bolls." The American Young Girl—or rather the pother made by analysis of the Young Girl—has moved us to laugh in a very Sardonian manner, as Homer may be translated. We smile when the Americans load our social notorieties with dollars and freely express our opinion about the wisdom of that course. Then about the American language we are forever having our philological fling. Expressions like "Do tell," "I want to know," "Liquor up," "Bloody up" (sanctioned as it is by a Tyburn bard), sayings such as "I feel like brandy and water," etc., on which we lecture, looking all the while as smiling as a basket of figs. We blame the American newspapers and tolerate a score of journals quite as scandalous, much more snobbish and written in the most depraved form of modern slang. [illegible] sort of thing we are [illegible] in a manner intelligible we trust to Mr. Warner, and then we get angry when the Americans criticise ourselves. Mr. James took a fling [illegible] English lords use the [illegible] of expressions which are common among schoolboys, and our outraged patriotism cry [illegible] young English [illegible] Mr. Grant White [illegible] American custom of dressing for dinner, which caused an outburst [illegible] Mr. Grant White [illegible] to a country house in the simple elegance of a morning coat [illegible] It we are [illegible] Americans [illegible] take care that the British lion does not answer with another roar (like the [illegible] Burton) when the Aquila [illegible] takes liberties with him. But the air is full of the magnificent roaring of the old lions of Blackwood's Magazine and the Quarterly Review. [illegible]

He stated further that the company he represented is desirous of encouraging business with the northwest. He declined to answer whether the agreement had been entered into with the view of retaining select control of the carrying trade of the northwest. Edwin Goodall, of the firm of Goodall, Perkins & Co., refused to make any statement, but finally admitted that an agreement substantially as above had been made, adding that a provision also existed for the joint maintenance by the companies of Chinese in transit while waiting for the departure of a steamer for Victoria. The agreement has already gone into effect, and at present a number of Chinese laborers are awaiting transports into the scene of the Canadian Pacific railroad work. Great difficulty has been encountered in supplying the demands for labor in the construction of the road, and in his opinion the arrangement for cheap fares would be of benefit to the section of country through which it passes. At all events it would be of great benefit to San Francisco and to the steamship line.

THE NEW POSTAL LAW.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Postmasters throughout the country are [illegible] the result of the readjustment of their salaries on the basis of two cent postage. In order that their income might not be cut down [illegible] reduction of the postage, congress last winter enacted a new schedule of postmasters' salaries. The new and old schedules cannot be exactly compared, because there are differences in the gradation of the offices in each class and because the present schedule [illegible]

NEW SCHEDULE [illegible]

The fixed salary will be $4,000. Where the gross receipts are $[illegible] the new schedule will pay from $3,000 to $3,100 [illegible] $[illegible] the pay will be [illegible] Where the receipts are $150,000 the new salary will be $3,500, when receipts are $450,000 the new salary will be $[illegible], and where the receipts are between $500,000 and $600,000 the new salary will be $5,000. Under the new schedule the maximum salary of $6,000 will be paid where the receipts exceed $600,000, under the present schedule the maximum salary, where the receipts are $[illegible], will be $[illegible], and the same [illegible] the receipts are $1,[illegible] but where the receipts are [illegible] the salary would be $[illegible].

ON SECOND AND THIRD CLASS OFFICES.

The comparisons are more difficult, for a large part of the present compensation is calculated on the revenues of an office not to exceed a maximum of $1,000, which is in addition to the revenue from box rental and commissions where the receipts exceed $4,000. Under the new schedule second class offices are those whose receipts range from $[illegible] to $10,000, and the salaries range from $[illegible] to $[illegible]. Third class offices are those whose receipts are $1,000 to $8,000, and salaries range from $1,000 to $1,500. In offices of the fourth class postmasters are now allowed 60 per cent of the first $100 per quarter of the revenue, and 50 per cent on the revenues exceeding that and not exceeding $200. The new schedule allows the whole of the first $50 of revenue per quarter, and 60 per cent of the next $200.

CHEESE MAKING.

PROF. ARNOLD'S STRICTURES CRITICISED BY A PRACTICAL DAIRYMAN.

An Essay on a Great Industry [illegible] Sweet Cheese and [illegible]

My dear professor, do give us the privilege to live and to learn. Twenty years ago you did your [illegible] not know as many things as you do now. If you do not remember of ever having learned any thing, or to have changed your opinions on important matters, then I am willing to help your memory a little. In 1879 Prof. Arnold wrote a valuable book, "American Dairying," in which on page 303 he says: "The choicest cheeses are set at a pretty low temperature." "In some of the best the rennet is applied at 77 degrees." In 1881 Prof. Arnold advises the good Minnesota cheesemakers to set the milk at 90 degrees. Not every reader of THE OREGONIAN [illegible] knows what a difference in temperature of 13 degrees, ascertained by the Fahrenheit [illegible] for the purpose of setting milk [illegible] way. The captain in command may have discovered a hundred islands in other waters by accident or otherwise, but I would have little faith in his ever finding the north pole.

But this our esteemed professor has never been 13 degrees away from the course known as the best. What he has done in 1879 and 1881 is simply this: He has both times recommended figures which, in rare instances, will answer in exceptional cases.

People who jump from one extreme to the other are known inside the profession as unprincipled hands. This means that the cheese made by such a hand is differing in quality from day to day. It means that such a dairyman has got to sell his cheese by the box in place of being able to show to a wholesale dealer a sample and sell the whole product of the season. I am not willing to dwell upon other conflicting advices given by our dear professor, and had it not been for his trying to fasten charges of incompetency on the whole profession these foregoing lines would not have been written.

A few remarks concerning the so-called "lard process" may not be out of place here. I sincerely regret that one of our best men (I mean Prof. Arnold) has [illegible] the good cause, and has, while he is acting in the capacity of president of the American Dairymen's Association, become a standard bearer in the camp of the larders. Every dairyman who has given the lard process a fair trial will agree that skim milk cheese is better food when larded. But if Professor Arnold, or any other professor, wants to advise for general observance to do the satanic thing to deprive the cow's milk of its best natural properties and employ hog's fat in its place, then I for one protest against it. If a man of the standing and intelligence of Prof. Arnold unscrupulously can recommend such a course, then it would be wasting time to reason with others in his camp less prominent in the profession. What I wish to say is directed to the general reader of THE OREGONIAN and not to them.

Cheese, as everybody knows, is made out of milk [illegible]. The oily and butter substances in fresh milk are its most valuable properties, and to retain them is what produces flavor, aroma and fineness in cheese and renders the article so much more digestible and wholesome for human food. To make the very best of cheese the milk must be sweet, rich and untainted. The food the cow is eating is [illegible] of the greatest importance. Nobody needs to look for the very best kind of cheese or butter where the cow has to fare on sour and [illegible] grass and stagnant water as it is the case in the bottoms of the Columbia river and its tributaries. Weeds and brush give no good results. [illegible] now wants cultivated sorts of food to give the best and the most of milk. The stock of the cow is not half so important as the food she is eating and the general mode she is cared for. In most all our cheese factories cheese is made but once a day. The evening's milk is cared for in the factory or on the farm. Cream will rise on this milk if not prevented naturally, and a part or all the milk may be older than 12 hours. As long as it is sweet and the cream on it tender it is fit for the production of good cheese. Milk with the cream on it has in most instances got to be skimmed. Up to this part of the daily work the cheesemaker and the larder could if necessary work together, but now they part. Conscience and professional honor are the principles of one, to increase the income is the guide for the other. The cheesemaker, after having gone through a certain process with the cream, is returning it to the milk, returning all the cream and nothing but the cream. Cheese made from milk not deprived of any its properties is known as full cream cheese. Be it our American cheese, be it the English Cheddar, be it the Swiss Emmenthaler, be it the French Roquefort, be it the Dutch Edam or any other kind, it was cheese of such properties which ranks so prominently now as an article of food and has made so rapid strides during the last forty years in all the markets of the civilized world.

There are many means and ways to lower the standard of any kind of cheese. Where there are people, as in certain localities, who are willing to pay [illegible] cents or even more for the very best kind of butter, the cheese maker will churn the cream and make skim milk cheese. But such cases occur very seldom. Everything devised for the purpose of imposing upon the consumer has thus far proven to be a dead weight on the neck of the industry, and the party who is employing his talent in search of new devices is an enemy to our interest proper. There was a time when our full cream cheese enjoyed an excellent credit in the markets of the United Kingdom, as well as in other parts of Europe. Two thirds or perhaps three fourths of our states, also a part of Canada, can produce milk cheaper than it is under the given circumstances possible in the principal dairy regions of Europe, viz: Switzerland, eastern France, Holland, southern Scotland and [illegible], Sweden and Norway. The freight across the Atlantic amounts never to much [illegible] we have been able to compete successfully in the markets of western Europe.

The Swiss dairy industry, so prominently predominating in Europe, was struggling for life and [illegible] the flag of supremacy. [illegible] Every [illegible] dairy farmer was highly satisfied with the results thus far obtained and there was every reason to be still more hopeful in the future. Not only was [illegible] a thing as booming [illegible] but there was a thing worth a good deal [illegible] there was a thing worth a thousand booms [illegible] fact that several farms in the eastern and lake states became gradually stocked with valuable cattle. The [illegible] those farms [illegible] next to worthless through the folly of our wheat farmers, and the dairy husbandry was restoring the worn out lands to their original fertility if not to a better state. These [illegible] showed that our country gradually could get rid of the one crop idea without going through the demoralizing effects of a national disaster. But this prospect seems to have been too good to last.

The reader will have to go back with me to where I [illegible] off with the cheese maker and the larder. The latter gentleman will skim all or a part of the milk and make butter out of the cream. The skim milk is already being prepared [illegible]

FROM THE OLD WORLD

(From the [illegible] London (Eng.) Times.)

Among the many specifics introduced to the public for the cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, derangements of the [illegible] kind, and as a general family medicine, none have met with such general acceptance as Hop Bitters. It was introduced in this country but a comparatively short time since, to meet the great demand for a pure, safe and perfect family medicine, they have rapidly increased in favor, until they are without question the most popular and valuable medicine known. Its world wide renown is not due to the advertising it has received. It is famous by reason of its inherent virtues. It does all that is claimed for it. It discharges its curative powers without any of the evil effects of other bitters or medicines, being perfectly safe and harmless for the most frail woman, smallest child and weakest invalid to use. Few are the homes indeed where the great discovery has not already been hailed as a deliverer and welcomed as a benefactor. It does what others affect to do. Composed of simple materials, it is a marvel of delicate and successful combination. Nothing is wanting. Every ingredient goes straight to the mark at which it is aimed, and never fails. Pleasant and palatable, agreeable to the stomach and thorough, [illegible] as a cure. It has won for itself the confidence of all.

A Few Unsolicited Letters from Thousands Received.

February 9, 1882.

I have tried experiments on myself and others with Hop Bitters, and can only recommend them as pleasant and efficacious medicine. I found them specially useful in cases of congestion of the kidneys, as well as in bilious derangements.

Gentlemen: Since writing you of the benefit I had derived from taking Hop Bitters I gave a friend a bottle, who had been suffering much from dyspepsia and sluggish liver, and the change was marvelous. He appeared another being altogether. He had tried several other remedies without any benefit. I could name over a dozen other miraculous cures.

ARTHUR O. HALL, Consular Clerk.

LONDON, ENG., Sept. 1, 1882.

I am pleased to testify to the good effects of your Hop Bitters. Have been suffering a long time with severe pain in the left side and across the loins, and having tried a number of so-called remedies without any benefit, I am glad to acknowledge the great relief I have obtained from your medicine.

[illegible] WATSON.

COLCHESTER, ENG., Aug. 18, 1882.

Gentlemen: I was troubled with a very bad form of indigestion for a long time, and tried many things in vain until I got some "Hop Bitters," and on taking was quite cured, and I am [illegible] still this time. It is now three months ago since I was bad.

F. BELL.

From Rev. J. C. Boyce, M. A.   Oct. 30, 1882.

Dear Sirs: I have lately finished my first bottle of Hop Bitters. After having for many years suffered acutely from rheumatic gout (inherited) feel so much better and can walk so much more freely. I should like to continue use of it. I write to ask how many bottles you will let me have for £1, so that I may always have some in stock.

From Ould Ireland.

Hop Bitters Co.   DUBLIN, Nov. 22, 1882.

Gentlemen: You may be interested to learn that one of the most eminent Judges on the Irish bench (a customer of mine) highly approves of your Hop Bitters, having received great benefit from their use.

T. [illegible] HOLMES, Chemist.

ALEXANDRA PALACE, LONDON, ENG., April 18, 1882.

I find Hop Bitters a most wonderful medicine, combination, healthful, blood-purifying and strengthening. I can, from analysis as well as from medical knowledge, highly recommend them as a valuable family medicine.

BARBARA WALLACE GOTLAND, Supt.

LONDON, ENG., Feb. 1, 1883.

Gentlemen: For years I have been a sufferer from kidney complaint, and from using your Hop Bitters am entirely cured, and can recommend them to all suffering from such disease.

WILLIAM HALL.

[illegible] ENG., Feb. 1, 1882.

Sir: Having suffered from extreme nervous debility for four years, and having tried all kinds of medicine and change of scene and air without deriving any benefit whatever, I was persuaded by a friend to try Hop Bitters, and the effect I am happy to say was most marvelous. Under these circumstances I feel it my duty to give this testimonial for the benefit of others, as I may say I am now enjoying very good health, therefore I can justly and with confidence give personal testimony to any one wishing to call upon me.

Yours truly,   HENRY HALL.

NORWICH, ENG., June 20, 1882.

To the Hop Bitters Co.

Gentlemen: Having suffered from many years from biliousness, accompanied with sickness and dreadful headache, being greatly fatigued with overwork and long hours at business, I lost all energy, strength and appetite. I was advised by a friend whom I had seen such beneficial effects to try Hop Bitters, and a few bottles have quite altered and restored me to better health than ever. I have also recommended it to other friends, and am pleased to add with the like result. Every claim you make for it I can fully endorse, and recommend it as an incomparable tonic.

Yours faithfully,   [illegible] W. PITT.

From Germany.

[illegible] GERMANY, Aug. 28, 1881.

Hop Bitters Co.

Dear Sirs: I have taken your most precious medicine, Hop Bitters—and I can already after so short a time assure you that I feel much better than I have felt for months.

I have had, during the course of four years, three times an inflammation of the kidneys. The last in January, 1880, was the worst, and took a lot of medicine to cure the same, in consequence of which my stomach got terribly weakened. I suffered from enormous pains, and had to bear great torments when taking nourishment, had sleepless nights, but none of the medicine was of the least use to me. Now, in consequence of taking Hop Bitters, these pains and inconveniences have entirely left me. I have good nights' rest, and am sufficiently strengthened for work, while I always had to lay down during the day, and that almost every hour. I shall think it my duty to recommend the Bitters to all who suffer, for I am sure I cannot thank the Lord enough that I came across your preparation, and I hope He will maintain you a long time to come for the welfare of suffering mankind.

Yours very truly,
PAULINE HAUSSLER, geb. Bader.

From Portugal and Spain.

Gentlemen: Though not in the habit of praising patent medicines, [illegible] for the most part are nothing [illegible] I have constantly used Hop Bitters for the past four years in cases of indigestion, debility, weakness of constitution and in all diseases caused by poor or bad ventilation, want of air and exercise, overwork and want of outlet, with the most perfect success.

I am the first who introduced your Hop Bitters in Portugal and Spain, where they are now used very extensively.

Yours very truly,
BARON DE [illegible] BELLA,
Professor de Chemista [illegible] de Pharmacie, Coimbra University, Coimbra, Portugal.

RINGS FOR BRIDES.

From a Chat with a New York Jeweler.

Are wedding rings expensive? Well no, they vary in price, but the dearest of them wouldn't break a [illegible]. This is the cheapest we have, fourteen carat and not very thick, and it only costs $4. This again is the most expensive I have in stock, weighs tolerably heavy, you see; is of the finest gold used for manufacturing purposes, twenty-two carat, and costs $15. Seems almost too heavy to wear, doesn't it? But a ring that would gall and weigh down a woman's finger wouldn't be unsuitable to a [illegible] after all. Yes, I sell quite a few of these expensive ones. You would naturally think it was a [illegible] [illegible] spending a few dollars on [illegible] ring.

[illegible] Why a man bought a ring in [illegible] last [illegible] and bought one for [illegible] the size [illegible] to November, and [illegible] Christmas day and [illegible] he thought it was [illegible]

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 27, 1883.

A MORMON SCHISM.

According to the Salt Lake Tribune (we) a thorn in the flesh of the Mormon "Zion," a hot controversy is rising between the two branches of the Mormon church as to the origin of polygamy. The Tribune as in duty bound, brings in new materials to the controversy and helps the brethren of the two wings to singe each other, while itself singes both with unwearied impartiality. In accounting for the division, it explains that Joseph Smith, eldest son and heir of the "prophet," from whom, however, the sceptre has been snatched by an unlineal hand, makes war on polygamy as a wicked innovation of Brigham Young's, and denies that his father originated sanction of or practised it. On the other hand the followers of Brigham Young produce the original "prophet's" revelation for plurality of wives, though they say he protested with tears against it, and declare that Brigham himself consented to take his twenty or thirty only after as tough a wrestle to avoid it as Jacob had with the angel.

To help these people to a settlement of their controversy the Tribune reviews the case as presented by both sides and presents at the same time some facts of its own. It shows that young Joseph has "backslid" till his Mormonism amounts to nothing. It requires the brutality and absurdities of Brigham's Mormonism to make it attractive. Visions and dreams and prophecy, the gift of tongues and of healing, baptism for the dead, temple building, plural and celestial marriage, the projection of the animal into the spiritual in time and eternity, the creation of bodies into spirits, the progression of men to gods each with a world to people and to rule over—young Joseph repudiates all this as "stuff and nonsense;"—and doubtless it is true his father was not equal to its invention, at least until he made that baleful conjunction with Rigdon in the winter of 1830-1. Rigdon, Parley P. Pratt, A. Campbell and W. Scott had a church embodying much of this humbug already running in Lake county, Ohio, before the "prophet" organized his church at all. These fellows received the golden bible upon its first presentation, and upon inducing their congregation to [illegible], Smith's church was removed from New York to Ohio and joined to Rigdon's, Rigdon and Pratt, however, accepting a subordinate place in the association. Smith brought [illegible] the partnership the plates and the pellucid [illegible], and Rigdon contributed the dogmas. [illegible], this man, no doubt, came the celestial [illegible] folly, although not till later. Brigham Young eagerly took it up, willingly persuading himself that what is wanted to add to his [illegible] of "wives" the inspiration thereto was of [illegible] origin. He clearly lacked something of attaining to that virtue which, as [illegible], "never will be moved though [illegible] in a shape of heaven."

[illegible] of Joseph and his fellow protesters [illegible] numbers to prevail. The [illegible] will have things their own way, and the reformers never will accomplish anything, till, no longer content with denouncing [illegible] alone, they repudiate the whole imposture known as Mormonism.

[illegible] AND SECONDARY OBJECTS.

[illegible] make mistakes, but the [illegible] of men and woman makes none. To [illegible] and woman their Maker has assigned [illegible] which they cannot refuse without making a failure of life; and in the discharge of [illegible] it becomes necessary for them to [illegible] into their places in life, as [illegible] the employments which are suited [illegible] man and woman. As a general rule [illegible] must chose the home and the man [illegible] go forth into the active business of the world. It is not asserted here that woman's [illegible] are less important or less trying than [illegible]. On the contrary, in many respects [illegible]. But woman cannot depart from her appointed way of life and choose [illegible] without paying the penalty in discontent and failure even more surely than man [illegible]. Probably every one will see the force [illegible] who reads the following, which was [illegible] Miss Susan B. Anthony just as she was [illegible] for Europe, to a lady friend who attended her to the steamer:

> "[illegible]. Everybody else who has been [illegible] the advancement [illegible] have ceased to live for the cause [illegible]. I am probably the only [illegible] who are striving for the [illegible] who has not been surrounded by home love and home cares. Elizabeth [illegible] has seven children, Antoinette Brown [illegible] the mother of five girls, Lucretia Mott [illegible], Lillie Devereaux Blake has two, [illegible] Brown two, Martha C. Wright five, [illegible] two, and even Lucy Stone has [illegible] all surrounded by home comforts, [illegible] moved by home interests. I am [illegible]. I begin to feel as though I had no place, [illegible]."

[illegible] this a pathetic admission of Miss Anthony that it is not best for woman to live for [illegible] which divorces her from home duties and from the companionship and love which are necessary to her comfort and happiness? [illegible] is a deep sigh for the mistaken [illegible] of a mind and life to a pursuit which [illegible] been allowed to defeat the true means through which alone a happy and successful life for woman may be attained. This is not [illegible], nor can it be, as an argument against the effort to emancipate woman from the disabilities under which she still suffers through the irregularity of the laws and the tyranny of social customs. But it does show that Miss Anthony's sisters are wiser than herself in that they have not given up the true mission of womanhood for a reform which, however necessary in itself, must, like everything else that is secondary, yield to the higher laws and grander purposes of human existence. There can be no greater mistake than to put the secondary before leading objects of life.

The main line of the Canada Pacific Railway company will be 2480 miles in length. The British Government gave the company $25,000,000 in money and 25,000,000 acres of land, which is claimed to be worth an average of five dollars per acre. It is said that this gift will more than build and equip the road, leaving the company its entire capital stock and several million acres of land as net profit before a train is run. This surplus will be used in building branch lines and in establishing steamship lines from Montreal to Europe on the east, and from Port Moody with Australia and the Asiatic ports on the west. The company's property will be exempt from all taxes forever. The theory is advocated that a company acquiring its property so cheap will become a regulator of the other transcontinental railways.

The pension list about to be published by order of congress will make a work of forty five hundred pages. It will give a list of the pensioners, their postoffice address, the amount allowed in each case, and the reason therefor. But such a volume cannot be thought wholly unnecessary, as it will lead to many little revelations. The pension office has been under a cloud, partly because of the gigantic sums which it swallows under the arrears act, partly because the administration of the bureau seemed irregular or spasmodic and mysterious. Publicity will do much, and is doubly welcome in this case, where much injustice has been done.

President Garfield who was once a successful school teacher, and an examiner of teachers, used to say that in examining applicants for teachers' certificates, he allowed forty per cent. for "gumption." In other words, if he saw that the applicant understood the principles and had the faculty of making them clear to the understanding of the pupils, he allowed something for defects in technicalities. These could be acquired, but the faculty which makes a successful teacher was not so common or easy of acquisition. It was a safe rule to work by.

THE MARKET FOR OUR FRUIT.

There was shipped from San Francisco to eastern points last year an aggregate of nearly seven thousand tons of fruit by passenger and freight trains, which put wealth into the pockets of the growers of California and made business for the transportation lines. With the near prospect of a through line from Portland to all interior states of the union and the east, and with the extensive reputation enjoyed by the fruits of Oregon and Washington, the question comes with peculiar force, "What is to prevent us from equaling or even exceeding the California export?"

Fruit growing has been a paying business in all localities accessible to market; but as this condition has been the exception rather than the rule, orchards have not been properly cultivated. All the country over fruit culture is carried on in a small way, as an adjunct of general farming business, and in scarcely an instance as a special industry and with careful attention. All varieties of the temperate fruits grow in soundness of body and richness of flavor in Oregon and Washington, far superior to similar products of the eastern states. A great country is rapidly opening up in Idaho, Montana and Dakota, along the line of the Northern Pacific railroad, and, as the demand upon California coming from east of the Sierras pays a liberal price for her product of her orchards, it is not safe to assume that as great a demand will soon be made upon us from the interior states of the north, to say nothing of supplying the markets of St. Paul, Chicago and New York.

While we have not the vineyards and orange groves of California, we have orchards of apples, pears, plums, prunes and cherries, whose beauty and flavor will command as ready a market in the east, and which, on account of their soundness, are particularly adapted for shipment and can be laid down in New York in splendid condition. It is promised that the over and line will be completed this coming summer. The time is therefore short and the prospect fair that the demand for our fruit will far exceed the supply. It is to the interest of every fruit grower in eastern and western Oregon and eastern Washington to take prompt steps in this matter. Many of the orchards, which have been allowed to decay, should be revived and fostered, and not a day should be lost in setting out new trees in every available locality, for it is no longer an experiment as to whether or not fruit culture here pays. There can henceforth be no glut in the market, and orchardists can be, in a large measure, independent of local demand. With the promise of co-operation in the matter of favorable rates from the railroad company, therefore, the fruit growing interest now becomes one of the great interests of the state; and it is to be hoped that early and ample preparations will be made for its increase.

Some of the very best plans for the improvement of the condition of the Indians have originated with the officers of the regular army, and of these none is more rational or full of promise than that of General Terry. It has the double support of analogy and experience. Reasoning from the fact that, in almost every civilized society, the nomadic and pastoral condition has been the natural intermediate and transitory stage between savagery and civilization, he would make the Indian first a herder, that by this pursuit he may be made ready for the habits and customs of the agricultural stage. Experiment has demonstrated in at least one instance the correctness of his reasoning. The 400 Cheyenne warriors made captive after a desperate resistance, are now peaceful and prosperous herders of cattle on the banks of the Rosebud. In the light of this experience there is reason in his belief that the solution of the Indian problem is to be found in the one word "cows."

It is said that business men in Boston, New York and Philadelphia invested in eighty-four western silver mines last year, and threw away into them not less than $80,000,000. A stranger infatuation than that which leads men of usually sound business judgment to invest their money in enterprises which do not pay dividends once in a thousand cases it is hard to imagine. The experience noted is only an example of what investors have sadly discovered in all parts of the country. Occasionally, at long and very rare intervals, some one makes a little money in a mine, but for 95 per cent. of those who risk their money in such investments there is nothing but disappointment and loss. Meanwhile opportunities for solidly safe investments in manufacturing and other staple enterprises are in numberless growing communities sadly neglected.

The Pittsburg Leader has just come out of a libel suit successfully. The suit against it was based on a supposed technical error in the report of a very gross outrage committed upon a woman by a number of young men, of whom the defendant was one. He laid his damages at twenty thousand dollars, but the jury said he had not been libeled at all, and consequently not damaged to the extent of a single cent. As a general rule newspaper proprietors are remarkably careful not to trench upon the personal rights of others, but they owe certain duties to the public which they must discharge at all hazards. On the other hand, jurors representing the public interests must stand by the newspapers when they are unjustly prosecuted in the courts and protect them against assaults made through selfish or mercenary motives.

The outlook is decidedly forbidding for English farmers. A recent report says that in the midland counties there have been but three fair days in ninety; the farmers have not sown their winter wheat, and the raising of spring wheat is such a doubtful experiment that but a small acreage will be devoted to it. In some regions miles and miles of land are under water, and no cropping will be attempted this season. This backward season is the ninth consecutive year of either failure or partial crop. The situation is one of despair to the poor farmer, from whom the wealthy land owner will inexorably require the usual rental, regardless of the elements. This is in black contrast to reports in the United States, where the data all point to a good crop.

The soaking rain of the past twenty-four hours relieves all fears of damage to wheat fields by drouth. These fears were idle, as the country would not have suffered without rain for two or three weeks more. A wheat buyer, who recently passed through the Willamette valley, is of the opinion that the crops this year will be as large as usual.

David Davis petulantly complains that he is stared at wherever he journeys, and says that he "supposes it is one of the penalties of being a public man." It is too much to expect, that any man who weighs, in the neighborhood of a quarter of a ton, can pass along an American street and not attract considerable attention.

We but anticipate for a day or two the prediction of the admirers of a "statesman" whom the people of Oregon have left out in the cold, when we say that he will undoubtedly be appointed postmaster general. Look out for "dispatches" to this effect within a week.

The public printer says that presses and other machinery to the amount of $50,000 must yet be purchased before the printing for the census bureau can be completed. No doubt we shall have all the reports of the census of 1880 before that of 1890 is taken.

California now produces about half the quicksilver of the world. During the last thirty years the California product has exceeded 100,000,000 pounds. The Rothschilds control the Austrian and Spanish mines.

Wiggins is not modest. He accepts every storm that takes place this month as his own. When he hears from Oregon about our variation no doubt he will be delighted.

"Now," triumphantly exclaims the organ of the cheap whisky association, "the liquor dealers will pay no license!" Perhaps they will not. And again, perhaps they will. That Gerdes [illegible] taken out no license for his deadfall where a man was shot during Sunday's all night orgie of men and women, it may be hoped will not establish a rule for violation of the law. Advocacy of this manner of lawbreaking and apology for its consequences will not prove so popular as a card for the organ of the free whisky union as it may imagine. In this community, fortunately, there are more people than the keepers and patrons of haunts like those of Gerdes, Harrington, Joe Taylor, and numerous others, where debased persons of both sexes resort for drunkenness and viler purposes. Who does not know that every establishment of this kind is a crime-breeding hole, where any time scenes of disorder, violence and bloodshed are likely to ensue. And yet the organ of free whisky and promiscuous drunkenness, believing that these places are above the law, and sustaining them in their pretensions, triumphantly exclaims in their behalf, that "now they will pay no license." Perhaps they will not. And again, perhaps they will, or shut up shop.

The testimony against the star route thieves is getting them into a close corner. It is edifying, however, to learn that Brady's "friends" say that Saturday's revelations don't touch the case at all.

The action of the legislatures of Ohio and Minnesota, looking to high license for sale of liquors, is regarded as a strong evidence of the growth of the high license sentiment in both states.

Mr. Tabor, whose "sudden" matrimonial capers and bonanza splurges have given him notoriety, is going to build a palace in Washington and pass his winters there.

Critics complain that Langtry does not improve with experience, but that her acting is as "parroty" as ever.

ONE STEP NEARER.—The O. R. & N. Co. have notified Idaho and eastern Oregon shippers that the Baker City branch will be opened for traffic next week to Cayuse station, 12 miles beyond Pendleton. This is one step nearer Idaho and will save the wagon haul over the worst part of the stage road. It is expected that the line within a month will be opened for traffic to Meacham's, near the summit of the Blue mountains.

VESTRY ELECTION.—Last night Trinity church parish elected the following vestrymen for the ensuing year: M. P. Deady, R. B. Wilson, R. Glisan, C. H. Lewis, G. H. Flanders, R. Koehler, J. McCraken, L. Brooks and C. H. Hoyt. The only change was the election of Mr. Doyt in place of C. N. Scott. The collection Sunday morning for the church debt exceeded $2800.

APPRAISERS APPOINTED.—In the matter of the guardianship of George W. Douglas and James H. Douglass the county court yesterday appointed W. H. Maxwell, A. H. Wheeler and Emil Kelly as appraisers of the estate of the above named minors. The court also appointed H. [illegible], James W[illegible] and Chas. Kelly as appraisers to determine the estate of Frances C. Campbell, a lunatic.

CONVICT EN ROUTE.—Frank Hoyt en route to the penitentiary, in charge of Deputy Sheriff [illegible] of The Dalles, to serve out a term of three years for larceny in Wasco county, was lodged in the city jail last night.

POLICE COURT.

The usual Monday morning batch of drunks was on hand at Judge Moreland's levee yesterday. Some eight forfeited their bail and as many more were fined $10. Among the latter was Pat Geary, who with the blood-soaked bandage around his head, looked as if he had been punished enough for getting drunk without the fine. Jack Brady, a bronzed man, and Lily Daly, a brazen-faced woman, pleaded guilty with great nonchalance.

Ah Wong, accused of blowing a police whistle and creating a disturbance on the sidewalk and then running away, assumed a vacant air when asked to plead, and "no sabe'd" all that was said to him. Policeman Hartline said that the Mongolian could speak very good English. As he made no sign, the judge fined him $5.00 just for luck.

The case of Charles Anderson, accused of assault with intent to kill Archie Clarke in Jordan's dive on Saturday night, was continued till to-day.

Victoria, Priscilla and Katie Gunlon, frequenters of Nancy Boggs' scow, were arraigned on charges of assaulting and beating Mary Gunter and a friend, pleaded not guilty in chorus and with a sort of "so say we, all of us," air. The case was continued till to-day.

THE "DOLLAR RACKET."

Walter Keys (?), the proprietor of the Yankee Bazar in New Market, and the "dollar racket" near the telegraph office, was arraigned on a charge of setting up and running a lottery game. Keys has been here some time, and has been engaged in keeping several rackets of this kind. Last fall he went by the name of H. Wallace. Theodore Lipka testified that he went into the "racket" and paid a dollar for a chance to draw a watch. The box was shaken up and a ball taken out. He saw the number 28 on it, which called for a watch, but Keys threw it back in the box, saying it was number twenty-eight, which called for a half dozen spoons. A great deal of time was spent in endeavoring to enlighten the court and counsel in regard to the game, concerning the workings of which they exhibited the most amentable ignorance, when it is known that about a half dozen of these rackets were running on First street for months. It was proven that Keyes was the proprietor of the racket, and that when arrested he took money from both that place and the Bazar to put up his bail. According to the testimony of both Lipka and Julius Marcus, it appears that the old artifice of selling a pencil, collar button, or some other worthless or idle, and making a present of the ticket, was not put in use by Keyes. The game having been run so long with impunity, probably that farce was not considered necessary.

After hearing the testimony Judge Moreland held Keyes to answer before the grand jury. His bail was fixed at $260 in cash or bonds for $400.

THE OPIUM JOINT SHOOTING.

George McKenna, charged with assault with intent to murder James Dunlap in Sam Duck's opium joint on Friday night last, was arraigned and asked for an examination. Several witnesses were examined. From their testimony it appears that McKenna called at the opium joint of Sam Duck a little before midnight on Friday in company with one Hosmer. They were admitted to a room where two parties were already engaged in smoking opium upon a sort of shelf. They took off their coats and lay down to smoke. A brother of Sam Duck, the proprietor of the place, was doing the cooking—that is, preparing the opium for their pipes. Shortly after, James Dunlap came to the door and wanted to get in. He is a frequenter of the place, and had quarreled with Sam Duck earlier in the evening. He was refused admittance, and being drunk, commenced kicking at the door. The Chinaman ordered him off, but he would not go, and finally McKenna asked him why he did not go away. Recognizing his voice as that of a white man, Dunlap began abusing him, saying that it was at his instigation the Chinaman refused to let him in. The language used was such as might have been expected under such circumstances. McKenna swore that at last he went to open the door and that Dunlap was standing with a knife in his hand and made a threat, when McKenna drew back, closed the door and discharged his pistol. Dunlap then went down stairs and began shouting murder on the sidewalk when the smokers in a body vamoosed the ranch and scattered. McKenna said he had been here a week last Friday. He got acquainted with Sam Duck the first day he came here. He was obliged to smoke opium for pain and pleurisy about twice per day. He is a man whose appearance is, to say the least, not prepossessing, and the readiness with which he appears to have discovered the filthy den in which he so promptly used his pistol does not have a tendency to change the impression formed by his looks. He was held to answer and his bail for the present fixed at $500. Should Dunlap die it will be increased.

AN INDIAN SCARE.

Four Hundred Umatillas Reported Having Left the Reservation and Being on the War Path.

It was reported here last night that there had been an outbreak among the Umatilla Indians, that four hundred had left the reservation and had refused to return, and were now on the war-path. Passengers by last night's train, which passed Willows, a little station 75 miles above The Dalles, at 10 o'clock in the morning heard such rumors, but the action of the Indians was explained by the statement that they had gathered at the river to catch spring salmon which had just commenced to run, that several got drunk, and raised considerable disturbance. Another passenger heard that the troops at Walla Walla had been telegraphed for, and were en route to Willows.

These are simply rumors in circulation, and are not vouched for. The following dispatch to THE OREGONIAN from Willows dated last night at 10:30 indicates that trouble is feared:

Mr. Shippy has just returned from a scout. He reports seeing a small band of Indians moving eastward, by McCready's ferry, up the river in the direction of Alder creek. It is reported that Indians are crossing in both directions at Rutherford ferry, near Castle rock, the majority going from this side over towards Alder creek, W. T. They have been crossing at that point almost hourly for several days. It is hard to say what will be the action of the Indians, and it is thought that they will remain quiet, but increasing the number till the storm is over. As it is raining and snowing hard, they are forced to remain inactive for the time being. It is thought they will not attempt to cross any great number to this side in this weather, although no opinion could be formed of what they would do on the Washington territory side. A general impression prevails that when they break out on the warpath that it will be a general break wherever they may be.

The fears of the people are temporarily quieted by the storm. Mr. Shippy has a night and day patrol out along the railroad and vicinity in the direction of Castle Rocks. The citizens will form an organization at about noon tomorrow and arrange for protection of life and property if necessary. Mr. Shippy has the postoffice one mile and a half from Willows Station, at the mouth of Willow creek, where the principal settlement is.

BRIEF MENTION.

Daniel Frazier and Joseph Baker were arraigned yesterday in the state circuit court on a charge of robbery, and given until to-day to plead.

Frank Wheeler, indicted by the grand jury for murder in the second degree by the killing of Fred Swarz at the Palace varieties about a month ago, was brought before Judge Stott yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge.

John McDonald, who stole a valise from the St. Charles hotel, and upon conviction of the crime was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, has been sent to Salem.

Jimmy McManus, George Dunlan, Willie Foley and Jimmy Snyder, all mere boys, were discharged from the county jail yesterday, having served a 12 days' term each for chicken stealing.

The adjourned annual meeting of the Portland Seamen's Friend society will be held this forenoon at 11 o'clock, at the parlors of Ladd & Tilton's bank, to hear reports of the secretaries, etc.

Telegrams and letters from county seats south of Portland indicate that the rain throughout the valley was as heavy as in Portland.

Last night's train from Walla Walla arrived two hours late, having been detained by a small slide near Bridal Veil Falls.

Messages at Western Union office for W. W. Wiley, Mrs. Bybee and Saml. M. Cooper.

As will be seen by our court report, another move was made in the Albina ferry war yesterday.

J. R. Doving was admitted to citizenship in the United States circuit court yesterday. Mr. Doving was present at the Irish land league meeting at the time of its breaking up. William O'Connor, Leon Swett, and Moses F. Walchafing declared their intention of becoming citizens.

Albert [illegible] of Lakeview, Lake county, has been appointed United States commissioner.

DEATH OF HON. I. N. SMITH.

I. N. Smith, eldest son of [illegible] Smith, U. S. Indian agent, at Warm Springs, Crook county, Oregon, died at his residence near Warm Springs March 19, at about 5 P. M. He had been suffering for some time with consumption, and removed to Eastern Oregon hoping the change of climate would benefit him, but the change availed him little or nothing, as the sequel shows. He was born April 24, 1829, in Adams county, Ohio. In 1842 he removed to Illinois, where he studied law under Judge Stewart, of Monmouth. He was admitted to the bar in 1851, and practiced law until 1852, when with his parents he emigrated to Oregon. He was married to Miss Josephine Gray at Independence Rock, Sweet Water, whom he survived about two years. He settled in Linn county, Oregon, was sent to the territorial legislature of Oregon in 1853, and was at different times elected prosecuting attorney in Oregon and Idaho. His last law practice was with Judge Chenoweth, of Benton county. He was a great lover of science and literature, and always a close student. Shortly before his death deceased requested that his body be laid beside that of his wife at Peoria, Linn county; but it being inconvenient to remove the body at the time of his death, it was temporarily interred at Warm Springs with the intention of complying with his request at an early day.

THE EAST SIDE.

THE STATUS IN INDIA.

Rev. W. E. Osborne, late missionary in South India, and Mrs. Lucy Osborne, his wife, occupied the pulpit at the M. E. church on Sunday—the former in the morning, the latter in the evening. The discourse by the latter calls for special mention, treating of an unusual subject—that of "India and its Missions." Mrs. Osborne spent five years as a missionary in South India, and therefore was competent to speak of the habits, customs and other peculiarities of the natives, which she did in a direct manner, to the great interest of her hearers. During her sojourn in that country, she had acquired the two languages spoken—the Aryan and the Persian—and gave some vocal illustrations of them, both in speaking and singing. Socially and religiously, the habits and beliefs of the people formed a strange and revolting compound. Society was composed of different castes, depending for the degree of their standing upon the rank and station of their antecedents, and so fanatical are they in their observation of the laws of caste that it is considered a damning act for a person of one degree to walk in the shadow of that of another. The transmigration of souls is a fundamental tenet of their faith, and believe that before a soul can reach its final reward, it must be transmigrated 800,000 times. For this reason the speaker, for preaching the doctrines of Christianity, was designated as the teacher of the short cut to heaven. Girls were betrothed as early as three years of age, and were almost invariably married at 11. The age of the man however, was never taken into consideration with that of the girl, and it was quite common for men of 30, 40, 50 and even 60 years of age, to marry girls of 11. If a man die, however, during the time he is betrothed, it is considered the best thing that can happen to the girl to die also, as this is considered a sign that she is possessed of an unworthy soul, and she becomes ostracised. The women are virtually the slaves of the men, and dare not even speak without their husband's permission. They were, notwithstanding, the superiors of the ladies of America and England in beauty, symmetry and gracefulness, and the speaker attributed these qualities as the result of the exercise which their labors imposed upon them. Like most women, they were great talkers amongst themselves, and the speaker while addressing them was continually interrupted by a succession of questions and quarreling between the proselytes thereat concerning the right of precedence in the speaker's attention. A better order of things was springing up, however, as the result of the inculcation of Christian principles among them. Those who embraced this faith were obliged to renounce all adherence to caste, and the girls were forbidden to marry before the age of fifteen. These regulations had a necessary salutary effect upon society, but still the work of reformation was comparatively in its infancy. Mrs. Osborne is a woman of fine education and an able and fluent speaker. The large audience which greeted her listened with rapt attention throughout the interesting discourse.

TRIAL BY JURY.

Judge Deady will lecture on the above subject at the M. E. church in this city to-morrow (Wednesday) evening, commencing at 7:30. The name of the lecturer is sufficient assurance the subject will be handled in a thorough and comprehensive manner, and that a large audience will be present on the occasion.

NOTES.

O. M. Barnard came up from Lewis river last evening. He says that smelt are running in the Lewis in shoals a quarter of a mile wide and he didn't know how many miles long.

CHURNED TO DEATH.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

ASTORIA, Or., March 26.—Barry Youmans, a deck hand on the tug Gen. Miles, was literally churned to death by the propeller of the State of California this morning. As the steamship backed away from the dock to proceed to Portland the Miles lay astern. Youmans stood on the rail of the tug with a fender to prevent damage. The slight collision jarred him off and he disappeared. Diving was commenced immediately. Two hours after the grappling hooked on to the body. It had evidently been sucked under by and had gone through the State's propeller. There were several gashes in the head, the neck was broken, one arm and one leg were broken, and the other arm was torn from its socket.

Youmans was an Englishman aged 30. He was a steady, industrious man and had worked a long time for Brown & McCabe, stevedores in Portland and Astoria.

THE G. A. R. IN EAST PORTLAND.

Department Commander, S. E. Cankin, Grand Army of the Republic, of Oregon, instituted the twelfth post of that order in this state last night at Ross & Story's hall in East Portland. Large delegations from George Wright Post No. 1, and Lincoln Post No. [illegible], of this city, went over to assist at the ceremony.

The new post started with thirty-five charter members and elected the following officers: M. D. Neer, [illegible]; C. Martin, S. V. C.; K. Lang, J. V. C.; E. N. Page, S.; G. J. Rose, C.; J. A. Sewell, Q. M.; R. Neal, O. D.; W. McFarland, O. G.; S. B. Harrington, adjutant; E. C. Brigham, S. M., and I. N. Sanders, Q. M. S., who were duly installed.

The name of Gen. E. V. Sumner was selected by the post, and it will be known as Sumner Post No. 12. The East Portland comrades entertained their guests with a fine lunch, and patriotic toasts and songs followed till far into the night.

The Grand Army of the Republic represents the best portion of the Union army during the war of the rebellion, and is one of the most respectable of the benevolent orders. Its posts all over the Union are schools of patriotism, and each one constitutes an honor to the place of its location.

SITUATED ON THE EAST BANK OF THE WILLAMETTE River, about one-quarter mile distant from the city limits of Portland, and immediately below Swan Island. The most available river front north of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co's works at Albina, and therefore offers Advantages Second to None.

The situation of the land renders it specially desirable for all kinds of manufactories. As a site for suburban residences, for which, in due consideration of the rapid growth of Portland, there will be an extraordinary demand, it on account of its picturesque situation. The real value of either business or residence property is necessarily determined by its accessibility. Portsmouth can be reached by water in fifteen minutes; by the St. John road in twenty minutes, and the eventual extension of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co's Railroad to Portsmouth from Albina is another advantage possessed by no other tract around Portland.

Cannot be Surpassed,

The connection of Portland and Vancouver by rail is only a matter of short time, and will materially add to the Accessibility of Portsmouth.

Also, the Northern Pacific Railroad to Kalama, running on the west bank of the Willamette river, and already in course of construction, can be AMUSEMENTS.

"MICHAEL STROGOFF." This celebrated spectacular drama was produced at New Market theater last night in admirable style. Much of the original scenery used at the California theater was brought up, and dressed up in this borrowed gear the New Market stage presented a scope of unusual and striking brilliancy. "Michael Strogoff" was presented by Mr. Gressner with dignity and spirit, and the various other parts were well disposed. Miss Mabel Bert and Miss Henrietta Osborne were received with special favor. An innovation to Portland was the introduction of a ballet, which though small, was well trained and graceful. "Michael Strogoff" abounds in strange situations, and these were brought out last night in their fullest effect. The scenic effects throughout were fine, the last scene, that of a city on fire, being especially realistic. The piece deserves a prosperous run.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES

American vs. Russian Wheat.

New York, March 26.—Herald editorial: It was not many years since that Russia was regarded as the granary of Europe, but of late years the United States and India have, to an extent, become sources of supply. This has resulted in a change of cultivation of the soil, by which free labor was substituted for that of serfs, but owing to a number of circumstances in which usury and land laws have played an important part, the new method is less efficient than the old. Formerly Russian wheat was held in very high estimation, and at the different markets quantities of wheat whose excellence was guaranteed by the knowledge of its source, could always be had. Now cultivators who are in financial straits mortgage their crops to speculators, who do not hesitate to mix high grade with low grade, and export it as all high grade wheat. These dishonest methods have become so general as seriously to affect the foreign demand for Russian cereals, and a system of government inspection is proposed as an extreme remedy for the situation. So far as the effective system of grain inspection which exists in this country has been adopted, we may well fear the results of Russian competition, and if our export of cereal products is diminished, how can we hope to maintain the favorable balance?

Haverstick's Property.

New York, March 25.—Geo. W. Conkling, Jr., and his sister, Mrs. Uhler, spent a quiet Sunday at their hotel and maintain a strict seclusion, as advised by Conkling's counsel. Conkling's coolness has been uniform since the night of the tragedy, and Mrs. Uhler is fast acquiring her composure. No steps were taken yesterday in respect to the property held by Dr. Amidown, but a proposition has been made to Mrs. Uhler's counsel by the counsel for James B. Haverstick towards making an amicable settlement with regard to a division of the other property, now being guarded by Capt. McElwain at Haverstick's room at Vienna flat. This proposition, it is said, is that Mrs. Uhler shall take all the jewelry, except a few trinkets, and all the furniture that remains after enough has been sold to pay the debts incurred by Haverstick's counsel. Action will be taken at Howe & Hummel's office this morning. Amidown's lawyer, Mr. Bennett, thinks there is no possibility of his client being arrested. He says: "In view of the hostile position assumed toward Amidown by Mrs. Uhler, I have advised him he had better stand squarely on his legal rights."

MEDICAL GRADUATES.

Eighteenth Annual Commencement Exercises of Willamette University.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES DELIVERED

The faculty and the graduating class of the medical department of the Willamette University, located in this city, held their annual commencement exercises last evening in the Taylor street M. E. church. All the seats in the spacious auditorium were filled with the friends of the graduates and of the institution, every one of whom felt a deep interest in the welfare of those young people who had been educated during the past years to drive away the sorrows and afflictions of humanity. The graduating class numbered [illegible] one of whom was a young woman, who ranked [illegible] almost her classmates, and by [illegible] of the coveted honor of diploma.

The exercises were opened by an excellent rendition of "Inflammatus, from Stabat Mater," by Mrs. M. J. Smith, after which the Rev. G. W. Izer delivered the opening prayer.

Rev. Dr. G. H. Marvin was then introduced and spoke as follows: A physician who was called from Boston to Cambridge to attend a patient whose disorder had taken a sudden and unfavorable turn, was thus accosted by the invalid: "Doctor, I am very sorry to make you come so far just to see me." "Never mind," said the son of Esculapius, "I have another patient only a block away, and so you see, dear madam, I am enabled to kill two birds with one stone." It may be the faculty of this college thought two birds might be dispatched with one stone when they invited a man known to be both physician and clergyman to address you. Not that I think that my medical brethren wish to give you the benefit of clergy in advance of their treatment, but that they recognize the close and noble relationship between the glorious science of medicine and the divine art of ministering to a human soul bowed down under the weight of sin, and sick from maladies more fatal than can ever befall the frail and perishing tenement of clay. When I graduated from the college of physicians and surgeons in New York city, my preceptor said to me: "You are entering a profession that, more than any other, holds in its keeping the happiness and welfare of mankind." I cannot quite agree with him. What he claimed for medicine is equally true of the gospel. In ancient times, and in Egypt the early home of both the healing art and [illegible], priest and physician were one. And they who sat amid the yellow sands of the Nile and in rock-hewn temples sacred to remedial influences and ministry, guarded the spiritual interests of mankind, cared as faithfully for the material and physical welfare of all who sought their counsel and assistance. Our blessed Saviour joined the two offices in his own person, and will be known all over the world so long as time continues, as "The Good Physician." The physician needs the benign influence of religion, and the pastor is poorly prepared for his work who has not some knowledge of the human body—the temple of God's spirit. And it seems to me that a conscientious, competent and God-fearing physician has it in his power to accomplish for the souls and bodies of men more than money and gratitude can ever pay for.

It must be a source of great pleasure and pride to you to know that in this city, so far remote from the centers of trade and learning, this young and growing city, soon to be not only the metropolis of the northwest, but one of the most important of all the cities in the country,—that here an institution such as this is developing strength and character to mould, for good the professional careers of these young men and women who are to be our future physicians. And we cannot be too grateful when we remember that the instruction so necessary is not only the scientific proficiency but the moral competency of these young men and women is in the hands of teachers we may safely trust and believe in. For it is all in vain the students are qualified to win success and applause in the pursuit of science if they are wanting in those moral qualities which secure confidence and entitle them to respect. When we call a physician to the bedside of wife or daughter, we are guided in our selection of medical attendance not only by the fame of the medical practitioner, but by some reasonable belief in the trustworthiness and conscience of the man we employ. And when we confide to his keeping the health and life of one whom we hold dear, and for whom we would give all we have and life itself, we confer upon him the most sacred trust it is possible for one man to bestow upon another.

Only a physician can appreciate the difficulties that surround a medical practitioner—difficulties arising from a thousand causes. In the first place it is almost impossible for him to make the public understand that medicine, like every other science, has its limitations, and that those limitations in no way militate against the knowledge and skill of the physician. The doctor is expected to comprehend at a glance the pathological situation of every case he is called to attend, and must guarantee results. And if the patient does not recover there are not wanting thoughtless and ill-natured friends and relatives who not only prate themselves but the entire neighborhood that had some other physician been called things would have been different. Most invalids have an elaborate and absurd theory of their own condition, and if the doctor conforms his treatment to their notions and prejudices he is sure to be distrusted and dismissed. A young friend who had just received his diploma and opened an office in the city of New York was waited on by an old lady who said that for several years she had suffered from "dyspepsia of the kidneys." The young "blind" disciple of Esculapius was so unlucky as to inform her that she was in gross darkness as to both her anatomy and physical condition, and was accordingly discarded for an unscrupulous quack, who told the ancient patient that she had wonderful discernment, and that in addition to "dyspepsia of the kidneys" she was afflicted with "a deposit of gall stones in the left lung." From which perilous complication she might be speedily delivered by generous doses of his "Electric Vitalizer." The old lady is a fair specimen of thousands of patients who though they consult a reputable physician still demand that the practice shall depend upon their own diagnosis and conform to their own opinion. These usually fall into the hands of charlatans who flatter and deceive them, and, like the woman in scripture, they suffer many things of many physicians, and spend all that they have, and are nothing bettered, but rather made worse.

In closing his address, Dr. Marvin gave some good advice to the students and spoke of the value of honesty in professional life and said, "I congratulate the medical department of the Willamette university upon the success which has thus far attended its effort to furnish to the northwest competent and acceptable physicians; I congratulate these students upon their creditable record for scholarship; and I congratulate the citizens of Portland upon the possession of an institution so worthy of their confidence and of such value to our commonwealth. May heaven spare the lives of these young men and young women, and make them of great service to suffering humanity.

Following Dr. Marvin, Mrs. Smith again entertained the audience by her skill upon the organ, and Miss Adelia B. Luse, professor of elocution in the university at Salem, read a humorous selection, descriptive of canal boating, which many people from the east will remember as the principal way of travel when they were young. During the evening Miss Luse gave other selections, including "Poe's Bells" and "The Fireman's Prayer" interspersed by music. Prof. Van Scoy, president of the university, conferred diplomas upon the following students, addressing each in Latin: E. L. Ervine, C. E. Bebee, Alben Bonebrake, John W. Geary, Hannibal Blair, H. B. Alden, Marie S. Whipple, W. H. Davis, J. Will Graham and J. S. Scott.

Mr. president, honored [illegible], gentlemen of the faculty and ladies and gentlemen:

As the representative of the class of 1883, it becomes my duty to appear before you to-night to say farewell. The long and arduous course of study has been completed, and to-night we stand within the threshold of our chosen profession. It is fitting that at this point we should pause a moment and contemplate that profession with its duties, its responsibilities, its opportunities for usefulness. No vocation in life calls for greater benevolence, greater industry, keener discrimination or more lofty and high-toned integrity of character. The mastery of its principles and the exercise of its duties demand the most studious and continuous industry. In its administrations the noblest sentiments of the heart find abundant field for exercise, and every excellence of mind and body its appropriate use.

The physician enters the most sacred precincts of the home and the highest sense of honor and purity of character should find their fitting exponent in him. And the courage that faces disease in its most hideous and contagious forms must be of a higher order than that of the soldier when buoyed up by the enthusiasm of battle.

But while so much is demanded of the medical profession society seldom honors its members with more than a transient fame, and gratitude and appreciation are frequently wanting. Unlike the pulpit or the bar its appeals are to the individual and not to communities. The highest reward the physician can look forward to is the consciousness of a thorough knowledge of his profession and of having contributed something to the alleviation of human suffering.

Fully appreciating then that ours is to be a humble lot in life we go forth with a high appreciation of the medical profession to meet a fate as only the future may reveal, but resolved that if the profession gain little by our efforts it shall not be dishonored by us.

Citizens of Portland we accept your presence here to-night as an expression of your good will towards our alma mater. A medical school in your midst is still a novelty. May time prove it a worthy object of your regard. During our sojourn in your midst we have received many evidences of your kindness and hospitality, and when time shall have mellowed the memory of those days I doubt not but that each of us will have very many pleasant recollections of our sojourn in your midst.

To each and all of you farewell. To you our worthy professors in being discharged from your care, it is proper that we make some fitting acknowledgment of our appreciation and gratitude for your many kindnesses and your faithful instructions. We go hence feeling that you have faithfully endeavored to perform your part in fitting us for our life work. In some degree at least our whole professional career will be shaped by the precepts we have received from your lips.

Your industry, your patient endeavors to impart instruction and your faithful devotion to the interests of our alma mater are all bonds of sympathy between us. Our relations have always been most harmonious and although it seems but yesterday we met as strangers, we feel we part as friends and that the interest you have manifested in us in the past will follow us when our relations as students and professors are ended.

On behalf of the graduating class I bid you each and all a reluctant good-by.

Classmates, the time for us to say farewell has come. Our school days as medical students are over, [illegible] our paths diverge. The ties that [illegible] can only be appreciated by those who have been similarly situated. No discord has marred our intercourse, and our rivalry has been of a generous and friendly kind, and I trust and believe that the friendships here begun will only be ended with our lives. In taking my final leave of you it is with feelings of the kindest regard towards each. [illegible] the good name of our alma mater [illegible] and that reputation will be safe in the keeping of the class of '83.

But the last words must be spoken. May this separation not be a severing of the ties that bind us, but only a lengthening of the cord. With best wishes for your future success and prosperity to each and all, a final farewell.

Ladies and Gentlemen—In accordance with a custom of immemorial usage, I appear before you in behalf of the faculty of medicine of the Willamette University, to give what is technically termed "The charge to the graduates." It is simply their last formal words to you of advice—of adjuration, of benediction, and hopes for your prosperity and usefulness.

Having pursued the required curriculum of study, your attainments after a fair, if not a severe examination, have been deemed satisfactory, and you stand parchment in hand ready to go forth vigorous and hopeful to meet the duties and responsibilities of professional life.

You leave the halls of learning with the best wishes of alma mater, crowned with her brightest honors, her name and her blessing. I shall only give you words of encouragement and cheer to-night. I take pleasure in testifying to your attentive and studious habits, and to your general good conduct while attending the prescribed course of lectures. And I do this the more readily as it gives promise of future achievement and continued prosperity. That you appreciate the fact that it assumes the duties and responsibilities of practitioners [illegible] purposes of justice in a court of law.

I need not say to you how sacred should be the ordinary confidence reposed in you in the relation and discharge of professional duties. The character of [illegible], but that any personal or family [illegible] could be brought forth to the light of day by a professional adviser is simply infamous.

I would say a word to you upon a subject which [illegible] or entreaty, to remember that the knowledge gained in these halls is sacred, and is to be used in saving life, and never in destroying it, and that no excuse, plea of saving character, or of necessity, of rich or poor, of high or low, will relieve you [illegible] particeps criminis in what the law regards and treats as a felony. As to the personal relations you are to sustain to your associates in the practice of medicine and surgery, I beg to remind you that your business is to build yourselves up, and that is never accomplished by forcing some one else down, and what can I say more than "As ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them." This furnishes all the code of ethics you require, and all the moralities. I therefore commend to you the old Heraldic motto, "[illegible]." All the allies of each as a device indicative of the amenities which will render professional association not only agreeable but profitable.

In this age of inquiry not to advance is to retrograde. If you would succeed you must realize that your student's life is but begun—that you must ever remain students, in fact that your student's life will never end. You now have your diplomas, which Professor Robert Watts humorously styled a license to study. You will often in the morning of your professional life be reminded by the world, and perhaps by some in the profession—that you have good theoretical knowledge—but—well you lack experience. And I suppose you would be the first to acknowledge this. But I beg you not to believe that you have accomplished little because this may be true. For I say unhesitatingly and without qualification that comprehensive theoretical knowledge is by far more important than what is commonly termed experience. Indeed what kind of experience would a person ever obtain of medicine or disease though he were in the habit of walking the wards of a hospital all the days of his life—if the foundation of observation had not been laid in sound theoretical knowledge of physiology, of the causes, history, possible results and pathological changes [illegible] are to be looked for, and understood. The experience of such a person would be entirely useless, and if he tried to put it to practical use, would be dangerous. Does the rustic following the paths of our mighty forests, or the trails of our mountain heights or digging in the quarry, gain any precise knowledge of the botany, or geology, or chemistry of the country? Not at all. But let a person thoroughly grounded in the theoretical knowledge [illegible] though he never saw them before, will tell their names, their characteristics, their qualities, their uses—and even their possibilities.

If you then have an accurate theoretical knowledge you are in the way to learn and profit by experience, but experience cannot give you theoretical knowledge, for this is the gift of ages. Therefore, I beg you not to neglect your books but still pursue some systematic course of study; for I am persuaded it would be difficult to name a position in life where more depends upon how time is spent than to the recent graduate in medicine. If culture is essential to others, it is no less so to you. Men may have a genius for poetry or song, or painting, or sculpture, or eloquence; but the emergencies of medicine and surgery require something more than genius. They demand a brain that is educated to perceive, a hand cunning to execute; no genius or inspiration to ligate the carotid artery unless you know how. No inspiration will enable you to restore vigor to a failing heart unless you know how. No capacity inborn will enable you to inflate a collapsed lung, to stay a hemorrhage or relieve from an overdose of morphine unless you know how. The genius of medicine and surgery is the genius of patient industry and accurate knowledge. The study then of medical literature will prepare you for your life work and prove an antidote to the most malign influence of years of comparative leisure—mental dissipation. This, together with a genuine love for general literature will afford you gratification, enjoyment, profit even quite equal to the pursuit of riches or the blandishments of society. Fenelon says: "If the riches of the Indies or the crowns of all the kingdoms of Europe were laid at my feet in exchange for my love of reading I would spurn them all." This seems somewhat stilted and extravagant, but it was doubtless a correct estimate of the value of books held by the author of Telemachus. But an estimate made by an old quaint author of the fifteenth century is perhaps nearer to our standpoint.

> He that many books redys
> Cunnynge shall he be;
> Wisdom is soon caught,
> In many lines it is sought.
> But sio is that no book bought,
> For reason teketh no thought;
> His fee it cometh behind.

That your thrift may not come behind, read not only the latest works, but read the old masters; read John Hunter, Sydenham, Harvey, and wonder at the scope and breadth of their views, that you may emulate the enthusiasm of these old workers in medicine, and if, peradventure, you wish to take an antidote to the heresies of medicine, you may act on the principle that "like cures like" and read Hanneman. Certainly I cannot prescribe a better or more certain antidote against the opium of wasted time, than the love and pursuit of literature. In your practice beware of theories and manias, though heralded by great names. Remember that a conservative course is better, as a rule, than innovation. In all these matters I commend to you the teaching of the apostle Paul: "Prove all things; hold fast those that are good." You have chosen a part in working out the mysteries of life and death. I know you are not unmindful of these privileges, duties and responsibilities. And now, while I have held up to you the scientific side of your professional life, you will think with me that this is by far more important than the business side of professional life. For if you have one the other is pretty sure to follow. But I may say this to you, that the laborer is worthy of his hire. Because you relieve pain, lengthen life, that is no reason you are not to be paid for it, and paid not something but the ordinary fee. This is essential to your self-respect, necessary to obtain a competence, necessary to contentment. I need not say to you that the medical profession is not one for the acquisition of wealth. "Rouse up," said a member of the family of one of the first physicians of France, then sinking under a most painful and wasting malignant disease, "rouse up, a patient is waiting; go earn a few francs; there is no bread in the house." If you would avoid his fate, charge well and collect your fees.

And now, congratulating you upon your admission to a profession that has played no mean or unimportant part in the history of civilization, and of the race, and though marked and scarred by twenty centuries of conflict and achievements, stands crowned with blessings and honor, her heart palpitating with the throes of immortal youth, bearing in her right hand the promise of life, and wearing on her brow an aspiration at least for a perfect physiology, a perfect knowledge of the history of disease, a perfect adaptation of remedial agents to the necessities of men, foreshadowing so far as may be that better land where there should be no more pain and no more death. I bid you in the name of the faculty of medicine of the Willamette University go forth to your work, invoking for you, one and all, a life of success and decided usefulness.

The graduates were greeted by their numerous friends with hearty handshakings and congratulations as they passed out the church, and the world was before these young students launching out in their chosen profession.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Monday, March 26.

The change in the weather gives entire satisfaction, even those who are idle on account of rain, seem pleased. That it was greatly needed none will deny, and [illegible] will more than make up losses by delay of work now. Farmers are jubilant and expect great benefit. The rain is general throughout this section, and extends as far south together as Stockton, in California. At San Francisco [illegible] fell last night, and at Sacramento [illegible]. At [illegible] Visalia and San Diego experienced cloudy weather with indication of rain. A dispatch says winter wheat was burned by the drought in about six counties of California, but with spring showers some portion will be saved.

City trade to-day has been quiet, but more confidence as to the future is felt. Markets generally are healthy with fair business done.

[illegible] in England, we are without usual reports. Atlantic wheat markets quiet, with San Francisco weaker. Local market very quiet, neither buyer or seller disposed to operate at present offers or asking. Several ask $1 97½, [illegible] as millers claim $1 95 is all they can pay.

Flour firm at full prices. Local demand good and domestic shipments are kept well up. Ships now loading foreign are about finished.

Oats in large receipt and holders are better supplied. Prices show no signs of weakness, yet the rain will force grass forward and the consumption may decrease in consequence.

Mill feed continues firm at full prices. Stocks have been sold [illegible] by local receipts.

Dried fruits in larger business, several lots having been sold to go to San Francisco.

Potatoes weaker owing to lessened demand from California, where the market is liberally supplied.

Choice apples wanted at full prices. Oranges in oversupply and the cold weather lessens demand. Consignments are being closed out with utter disregard to first cost.

Chickens scarce and wanted at $6 00. Arrivals are promptly taken up by local dealers.

Eggs in very large supply, some houses having considerable in stock. 22½c was generally asked but the market is very soft. With continued free arrivals values must decline.

Receipts past 48 hours include 63 ctls wheat, 1100 bbls flour, 250 ctls oats, 3,400 lbs bran, 22,950 lbs millstuff, 310 sks potatoes, 48 b's hay, 765 lbs hides, 17 bxs butter, 350 do eggs, 68 bxs fruit. Also 300 bbls flour, 990 lbs wool and 4675 lbs hides from the eastern section.

Weather thick with steady rain all day.

Shipping Notes.

The ship Sovereign of the Seas, 1502 tons, now due at New York from San Francisco, will be laid on at New York for this port in Sutton's line. She will sail about May 20th.

The Umatilla went over to Albina to-day to discharge railroad freight.

The Queen of the Pacific will sail at midnight, one day ahead of time. The new schedule goes into effect in a few days, when steamers will leave every three days. It is stated that the Umatilla will be fitted up for passenger traffic on her return to San Francisco.

The steamship Idaho was announced to sail from San Francisco last Saturday for this port and Alaska, but no advice of her sailing has yet been received.

The sailing of the Henry Villard clears the river of loaded vessels outward bound. The Renfrewshire and Garnock are well along and the Lutterworth will soon be finished.

The [illegible] is still at Astoria.

BABY'S PETITION.

Life is restless, days are fleeting,
Children bloom, but die in teething;
Warning take, all friends and mothers,
Watch the precious girls and brothers,
Read the home life of Victoria,
Children need a little Castoria;
No sleepless nights, by baby squalling,
Like larks they rise in early morning.

Gentle Women

Who want glossy, luxuriant and wavy tresses of abundant, beautiful Hair must use LYON'S KATHAIRON. This elegant, cheap article always makes the Hair grow freely and fast, keeps it from falling out, arrests and cures grayness, removes dandruff and itching, makes the Hair strong giving it a curling tendency and keeping it in any desired position. Beautiful, healthy Hair is the sure result of using Kathairon.

KIDNEY-WORT

THE GREAT CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

As it is for all the painful diseases of the KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS.

It cleanses the system of the acrid poison that causes the dreadful suffering which only the victims of Rheumatism can realize.

THOUSANDS OF CASES of the worst forms of this terrible disease have been quickly relieved, and in short time PERFECTLY CURED.

KIDNEY-WORT

REMEMBER THIS.

If you are sick Hop Bitters will surely aid Nature in making you well when all else fails.

If you are costive or dyspeptic, or are suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill, for Hop Bitters are a sovereign remedy in all such complaints.

If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting Death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in the use of Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter or a resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—malarial, epidemic, bilious and intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply or sallow skin, bad breath, pains and aches, and feel miserable generally, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood and sweetest breath, health and comfort.

In short, they cure all diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Nerves, Kidneys, Bright's Disease. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

That poor, bedridden, invalid wife, sister, mother or daughter, can be made the picture of health by a few bottles of Hop Bitters, costing but a trifle. Will you let them suffer?

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

DR. GIBBON'S Dispensary, No. 623 Kearney St., San Francisco.
